THE FRENCH MAKE FRESH PROGRESS

INTERPRETATION OF "OPEN DIPLOMACY"

President Wilson Declares His Use of the Phrase Was Not in Reference to Senate Discussion of Treaties

(By Associated Press)
Washington, June 12.—President Wilson today gave an interpretation of his statement to Congress last January in favor of "open diplomacy" to quiet the Senate controversy over the proposal of Senator Borah of Idaho for public consideration of treaties.

The President made it known that his advocacy of "open diplomacy" was not in reference to the Senate executive discussion of treaties in which he recommended no change, but meant the publication of treaties after their ratification.

President Wilson's disapproval today killed a proposal in the Senate for open discussion of treaties. Senators voted down an amendment by Senator Borah embodying the proposal which had been offered as an amendment to the resolution of Senator Underwood for curtailing Senate debate during the war.

Paris, June 12.—The battle continued during last night between Montdidier and the river. Else without great change in the situation.

Nevertheless fresh progress was made by the French troops near Mary and Genlis wood. Along the Aronne front and in the region of St. Maur the French repulsed violent attacks of the enemy. Despite repeated efforts the Germans were not able to cross the river.

The French are holding their part of the battle salient, South of Chevincourt and Maesep-Sur-Matz on the front between Soissons and the river Marne, the Germans attacked this morning. Fighting is going on between the river and the village of Grotterets. Violent combats are being fought on the front of Dammaries, Culry and south of Ambieny.

With the American Army in Picardy, Tuesday.—American artillery aided the French in their counter attack against the Germans southwest and south of Montdidier today, by directing a fire against the enemy. Otherwise they have not been engaged in the present battle.

SPECIAL MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

Pass Resolution on the Matter of House Building for Navy Yard Employees

A special meeting of the City Council was held at 10 o'clock this forenoon to take action on the matter of housing mechanics employed at the navy yard. The government is increasing the force between 1800 and 2000 and the city council is called up to meet the situation. Councilmen Haynes Gray, Weeks, Kuula, Hicks and Humphreys were present. Mayor Ladd stated the purpose of the meeting and urged that Portsmouth should take the matter up without delay. It is understood that there is no limit set as to the number of houses to be erected and that Portsmouth can have a good part of the $2,000,000 for the project. The government is to assume 80 percent of the expenses and the city 20 percent.

The following resolution which passed unanimously explains the proposition:

CITY OF PORTSMOUTH, NEW HAMPSHIRE,

In the Year One Thousand Nine Hundred and Eighteen.

No. 22. A Resolution relating to the building of houses in the Almshouse field, so-called.

Resolved, by the City Council of the City of Portsmouth, N. H., assembled, as follows:

That in the event that the United States Navy Department shall assist in the building of houses by a corporation to be formed and organized to lease the land known as the Almshouse Field of the City of Portsmouth and said proposed corporation shall erect one hundred houses or more on said field, by loaning to said proposed corporation an amount equal to eighty per cent of the total capital invested said capital to be computed by an appraisal of the said Almshouse field at a value of $60,000.00 and the building of water and sewer system by said City at $30,000 as a part of the twenty per cent to be raised by the proposed corporation. Then the City of Portsmouth will lease to the said proposed corporation the said field at a reasonable rental for the term of ten years or until three years after the close of the present war with a clause in said lease providing that said City will at any time during the term of said lease sell and convey the whole or any part of said field for the said sum of $60,000, or proportionate part thereof for any part of said field to the said proposed corporation or to such person or persons as such corporation shall elect or appoint. The City of Portsmouth further agrees in the event of the acceptance of the above proposition that it will build and construct suitable water and sewer system at an expense not to exceed the said sum of $30,000, on said field, and further provide that one of the officers of the said City shall be by virtue of his office one of the directors of said proposed corporation.

Passed the City Council, June 12, 1918.

LEWIS SOULES, City Clerk.

SAUEL T. LADD, Mayor.

SHOOTING AFFAIR AT ROCHESTER

In Rage One Man Fires Shotgun at Another, but Bullet
Misses Mark

A sensational shooting affair occurred at Rochester Tuesday, and while the results are not serious, one man had a narrow escape from death and another is likely to be prosecuted on a charge of assault with intent to kill, or in lieu of that, of being up against the head amendment to the Webb-Kenyon act.

Monday, Isaac Pearl and Fred Dodge of the Hansonville district went to Dover, Mass., and there bought a quantity of their return. The pair made so much noise that someone of their neighbors sent for Officer Fred Hamilton to put a halt on their exhibition.

Tuesday morning Edward Dodge, brother of Fred, called at the Pearl house and immediately accused him of having been the cause of Officer Hamilton's visit. This Edward Dodge declared was not so, and in the heat of the argument which followed, Pearl called him a liar, whereupon Dodge snatched his gun, fired at his house, and got a double-barreled shotgun, threatening to shoot if aimed his gun at Dodge and fired, but Mrs. Pearl threw up the muzzle of the gun and Dodge fled.

Dodge was moving away when Pearl fired again, this time some shot lodging in Dodge's hand.

Complaint was immediately made and Pearl was taken into custody and landed the lockup and a conference is now going on as to whether he shall be arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to kill or whether the United States authorities will proceed against him on the charge of bringing liquor into a no-license state.

WASHINGTON DIRECTED FIRST SUBMARINE

Attacked an English Ship in
New York Harbor and Caused Much Alarm Among Crew.

The first known submarine was built in the Washington time, and that its first exploit against an enemy ship was directed by that general, perhaps will be a surprise to many readers.

The following account of the exploit is taken from a letter recently published in the New York Sun:

"In a file of the Boston Independent Republican for 1821 is an obituary notice of Capt. Ezra Lee, a soldier of the Revolution, who had died in Lynn, Mass., aged 72, in which is recounted his daring exploit in a submarine boat in the North River, in an attack on enemy ships. The account of this exploit, submarine fighters' daring deed is as follows:

"When the British lay in the North River opposite New York, and while General Washington had possession of the city he was very desirous to be rid of such neighbors. A Mr. Bushnell, of Saybrook, Conn., who had the genius of a Fulton, constructed a submarine machine, of a conical form, bound together with iron bands, within which one person might sit, and with cranks and seals could navigate it to any depth under water. In the upper part was affixed a vertical screw for the purpose of penetrating ship bottoms, and to this was attached a magazine of powder, within which was a clock, which, on being set to run, any given time, would, when run down, spring a gun lock. And an explosion would follow.

"This 'machine, turtle' so called, was examined by General Washington, and approved. The brother of the inventor was to be the person to navigate the machine into action, but on sinking it at the first time he declined the service.

"General Washington, unwilling to relinquish the project, requested Major-General Parsons to select a person in which he could confide voluntarily to engage in the enterprise. The latter, being well acquainted with the heroic spirit, the patriotism and the firm and steady courage of the deceased above mentioned, immediately communicated the plan to the officer, which he accepted, observing that his life was at General Washington's service.

"After practicing the machine until he understood its power of navigating and moving under water, a night was fixed upon for its attempt. A General Washington, and his associates in the secret took their stations upon a roof of a house in Broadway, anxiously awaiting results. Morning came and no intelligence could be had of the intrepid navigator, nor could the boat attending him give any account of him after parting with him the first part of the night.

"While these anxious spectators were about to give him up as lost, several barges were seen to start suddenly from Governors Island, when in possession of the British and proceeded toward some object near the Asia ship of the line. Suddenly they were seen to sail about and, after for a while with springs on, in two or three minutes an explosion took place from the surface of the water, resembling a waterspout, which aroused the whole city and region. The enemy ships took the alarm, signals were rapidly given, the ships cut their cables and proceeded to the Hook with all possible dispatch, sweeping their bottoms with chains, and with difficulty preventing their frightened crews from leaping overboard.

"During this scene of consternation the deceased came to the surface, opened the brass head of his aquatic machine, rose up and gave a signal for a boat to come to him, but they could not reach him until he again descended under water to avoid the enemy's shot from the island, who had discovered him and commenced firing in his wake. Having forced himself under a group of logs under water until without the reach of shot, he was taken in tow and landed at the battery amid a great crowd, and reported himself to General Washington, who expressed his entire satisfaction that the object was effected without the loss of lives.

"Captain Lee was under the Asia's bottom more than two hours, endeavoring to penetrate her copper, but in vain. He frequently came up under her stern galleries searching for exposed plank and could hear the sentinels cry, 'Ours he was discovered,' by the watch on deck and heard them speculate upon him, concluding that a drifting log had paid them a visit.

He returned to her keel and examined it fore and aft, and then proceeded to some other ships. To the impossibility of penetrating their copper hundreds owed their lives. The longest space he could remain under water was two hours.

"Bushnell's submarine was called a turtle because of its resemblance to the reptile. It stood in the water end up, with a small coning tower at the turtle's head. The motive power of the turtle was the muscles of the inventor applied to a couple of oars.

"In Ezra Lee's attempt upon the Asia (now Lee's account) it was the Eagle he failed to attach the screw to the copper hull, and the torpedo, carried away by the tide, exploded 90 feet from the ship.

"In 1776 Bushnell's torpedo destroyed the first vessel ever blown up by such a device. Bushnell attacked the Caribarra, which was at anchor off New London, and although he missed the frigate, the torpedo did for a schooner laden with beef.

"Bushnell was a mechanical genius with a bold, brave, and daring spirit, and his times and his facilities. He was a good soldier, and was a captain in the Revolution. After the war he went to France and was believed to have died there. 1824 after the death of a certain Dr. Bush, who had been a school master and a practicing physician in Georgia for many years, his will revealed the fact that he was David Bushnell, the man who gave silence to the navy of George III."

LOBSTER ALRIGHT IF ORDERED AHEAD

Decision is Rendered by Biddeford Judge as Result of Seizure by Wardens.

Judge Edward Biddeford has given an opinion in respect to automobile parties coming to Maine for shore dinners. He rules that keepers of places where shore dinners are served may have in their possession lobster meat taken from the ship, providing they can prove it is for a dinner ordered in advance.

The decision resulted from a seizure of lobster meat by Game Warden Waldo Ricker. The Saco city government had planned a dinner at the place kept by Athena Mitchell on the Pool road, Biddeford. Two hours before dinner time game wardens seized the lobster.

Mitchell's defense was that the meat had been removed from lobster of legal length in order that the guests might be served as soon as they arrived.

THAT AMUSING "HIGH SEA" FLEET

(From the New York Herald)

Report that the German High Sea Fleet, an amusing designation, is making ready to venture from behind its mine fields and shore guns, multiply and become more and more insistent. The fleet must now be at the apex of its possible efficiency while the best the Allied vessels can present is their average strength, and for the news if their attempted foray will bring joy to the hearts of the officers and men of the British Grand Fleet, including our own division, who desire nothing more cheering than the chance to fight to a finish the skulking Hun.

These indications of a new and more serious purpose flow from many and from widely separated centers. The dockyards at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven have been unusually, not to say exceptionally, active of late. In the Baltic, too, a German fleet, there have been incessant squadron exercises and experimentation with destructive devices and novel constructions, and a lesser show to show the way of the wind, groups of officers have been detached from the Mediterranean and the Adriatic and assigned to duty with the northern naval forces.

It may be that the land drive at the Channel ports with the confident expectations of their capture, was the primary cause of the feverish energy and activities displayed. Indeed, competent neutral authorities assert that in April the High Sea Fleet—again a curious appellation—was ready to attempt the dash, supported by swarms of aircraft, shoals of submarines and camp followers of mine layers. But remembering, with all this still hot in the mouth, what British guns had pumped into German ships off Antwerp, the Hun sought for now protection in the torpedo and the mine, and forgetting the armored belts of the dreadnoughts, hoped for the effect on the less protected decks of monster bombs discharged from the air.

And yet, unless a miracle intervenes the gun will, as of old, maintain its historic supremacy; and the other assumption, that the British Grand Fleet could, as the German strategy necessarily implies, be caught napping—why, this is a besotted dream in which only a Prussian could wallow.

The campaign on the Western front is failure in objectives and the ordered bleeding to death of Hun army corps, reveal the desperation of the enemy. Therefore, as a last throw of the dice, the High Sea Fleet may be driven out and unwilling, as it undoubtedly is, to take its final chance. Better for this than to play the hazardous role of the paton, to be traded when the chessboard of intriguing peace is set for the last trickeries of the game.

A ROMANCE OF NEW YORK RE- ALTY

(From the New York World)

The death of Henry Astor, son of William B. Astor, closes another romantic chapter in the history of New York's great landed family. Henry, when a boy of twenty the daughter of his father's gardener, Henry Astor was disinherited in turn by his father and brothers, and what the estrangement that him may be inferred from the fact that the fortune left by William Astor exceeded $100,000,000. By the will of his grandfather, the original John Jacob Astor, he enjoyed

AUTOCRACY AND MILITARISM DOOMED

St. Paul, June 12.—Autocracy, militarism, and its most dangerous supporting weapon, irresponsible diplomacy, must perish; democracy, justice, freedom, and absolute confidence between governments and people must be established and triumph, is the verdict of American labor upon its country's participation in the war expressed today by the report of President Samuel Gompers and the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor to the annual convention in session here.

"Workers in war production are practically a part of the fighting force," the report declares. "No action should be taken in the shops or on the field not in harmony with the purposes of the war. No strike should be inaugurated which cannot be justified to the men making his life on the firing line in France."

"A crisis in world affairs has been reached. The battle line of our allies in France is menaced by the forces that represent autocratic government. Each day and hour of the coming months will hold in fearful balance the destiny of the governments and the peoples representing the ideals which bring into being and maintain governments directed by the people themselves."

"America was drawn into this world war by the challenge of those autocratic forces which enthrone might as their chief aim. With the growth of achievements of our republic, this nation has stood as a beacon light to all the oppressed peoples of the earth. Our institutions have radiated to the remotest parts of the globe concepts of a government guided and maintained by the will of its people. As a people imbued with the highest ideals of justice the fact that the allied armies have their backs to the wall lighting the windows of autocracy makes the present moment assume a unique and a dangerous front and moves us to the solemn duty of self-examination, to determine whether whether we are doing our full part."

With equal emphasis insisting that just labor policies govern war production, the report declared:

"Those contributing to production should have a part in its control."

"Every worker has a right to be freed from all avoidable uncertainties of employment, both from those arising through poor labor administration and from mismanagement in production and the efforts of speculation in raw materials or finished products."

"In looking toward the future, we feel keenly that the nature of social development will depend largely upon the principles which workers shall demand as the basis for relationships."

"We are each day building labor's house of tomorrow. If that structure is to endure the test it must be founded upon the bed rock principles of equality and democracy in relationships between men."

"The present war is an extraordinary opportunity to determine those principles. This life and death struggle between the nations of the world is a laboratory which is disclosing the strength or weakness of every social relationship and institution. War is forcing us back to the essentials of life. War is a fundamentally cooperative action of organic society. The present war is on such a gigantic scale that every part of national life is involved. The whole nation is in the war. The spirit of war activity and organization is essentially social. The national organism is at stake. As a war necessity we are seeking the principles which will assure the most efficient cooperation. This cooperation must come from the two primary forces of society—the possessors of creative labor power and controllers of capital."

In behalf of labor, offering this cooperation, the report renewed its declaration that labor cannot be classed as a commodity, and demanded "equal right to representation and equal voice in all agencies determining matters affecting their interests and welfare, whether in private or government employment."

"Progress made towards this end through the shipping board and ordnance departments of the army," the report says, "indicates what must become an accepted custom in all production." In some governmental aspects of war production the report asserted the representation has not been accorded. It suggests that all producing enterprises be equipped with a "Labor Manager," as well as a chief engineer and other executives, and said that "there ought to be in charge of all labor problems of production a high-powered trained labor man."

In addition to its presentation of abstract principles, much of the volume of the annual report was taken up today with recent history of the Federation's activities as they had to do with the immense conversion of national industrial establishments to war service, particularly citing the maintenance of its officials for the maintenance of the eight-hour day. Considerable time was devoted to the War-Labor board creation, and to railroad labor battles. It dealt likewise at length upon the adoption by various states, West Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, and North Dakota, of compulsory labor laws, and expressed anxiety that the idleness banished by the laws should not include that "resulting because of differences between employers and their employees."

Anticipating the spread of the legislation, the report defines the federation's position towards the policy as not hostile if "due guarantees for the protection of the rights of workers are incorporated in the war emergency measures."

"Labor turnover," the report attacked as even less desirable for the worker than for the employer, and advocated as a remedy its labor manager plan, involving, it said, "intelligent and sympathetic understanding of the needs of workers and what constitutes fair dealing." It recommended to permanent industrial establishments regular conferences between committees of employees and the management, to meet all problems and asserted that "it is fundamental for efficiency in production that the essentials of team work be understood and followed by all."

Discussing the question of workmen's compensation, the report noted the "development of favorable sentiment for the enactment of health insurance laws," and declaring that the condition was similar to that caused by accidents in industry, asserted that "the organized labor movement of America ought to formulate a program upon this subject."

Dealing with the subject of education, the report classed the credit for vocational educational progress as due—in part to the activities of the federation, and expressed opposition to tendencies to "overwhelm" the national vocational education board with new duties. It also advocated the extension of part-time school systems, which would finish the education of minors compelled to start early in gaining their livelihood.

Porto Rican labor troubles were given some attention, and the report, citing charges brought by Mr. Gompers against Governor Yager of the island because of the use of insular police in breaking a strike on sugar plantations, asserted that the official action "had denied the right of free assembly and discussion," and said the governor had "followed an unwise trouble-producing policy."

The report announced also that the Executive Council, in accordance with the instructions of the last convention, had adopted a resolution recommending to affiliated unions that no individuals be admitted to union membership unless they were citizens of the United States.

Reviewing the enactment of national legislation during the year, the report among other things said that President Gompers and members of the executive board had carried out the federation's policies by opposing proposals to import Chinese labor into the United States and its territories, and after support given to wage increases for government employees, and to women's suffrage.

"The American labor movement faces the difficult problems of the future with an organization numerically stronger and more effectively united than ever before," the council's statement concluded. "During the past months the trades union movement has earned for itself a reputation and a value more adequate than ever previously achieved. It had stood the most difficult tests, and demonstrated that it is an indispensable part of organization for production, and therefore an integral part of the organization of society."

"Because it is an agency that promotes efficiency, and is indispensable to the quickest and most effective production of war materials, it is inevitable that the coming months will bring great opportunities and increasing organization. Let us strive to take every advantage of these opportunities in order that the workers may be in a position to deal wisely with the difficult problems of the reconstruction period that will follow the war, and thus to establish permanently the higher standards of life and work."

Besides President Gompers, Daniel J. Tobin, treasurer, Frank Morrison, secretary, and the eight vice-presidents of the federation, James Duncan, James O'Connell, J. P. Valentine, John R. Alpine, M. B. Perham, Frank Duffy, William Green, W. D. Mahon, were the signers of the report.

A Worcester mother, while sitting in the Common was troubled by her lively baby who made frequent attempts to run away while the mother was knitting. She finally hit upon the idea of placing the baby in the large wastebasket near her bench. No sooner was the child placed there than she grabbed an empty tobacco can and tried to go "over the top" with a whoop.

NO MORE WAR INDUSTRIES IN THE EAST

(By Associated Press)

Washington, June 11.—To check further industrial congestion in the eastern part of the country, the War Industry Board and the Fuel Administrator have put into force a policy of not given any more government orders.

This will affect N. E. and the Southern New York where the great congestion is at present. This will tend to create an expansion of the middle west, but so moderate there will not be any sudden boom or so that it will not effect the present centers of war orders. The reason for the rule lies primarily in the inability of the railroad to handle coal to the industries and to take away the great quantity of goods that is being turned out. The shortage of labor is also a reason for the new order.

DRIVE ON FOR THRIFT STAMPS

The drive on for the sale of Thrift Stamps and the local committee of which Laurence G. Meyer, is the chairman, is busy at present placing the stamps about the different stores in fact everywhere, that there is a chance of their being sold.

In the schools the Thrift stamps have been talked up for some time and there is a keen rivalry among many of the scholars as to who shall lead the honor roll. It is a safe bet that there is less money being spent by children at the present time than ever before in the long history of this city.

The local committee has made a big start on the work and from now on there will be a drive until this city again goes over the top for the city and state and will be given a quota of 50 cents per capita.

Nashville, June 11.—Three prisoners escaped from the state prison here today by pumping into the tank of an engine standing outside of the prison walls and forcing the engineer at the point of a revolver to run his engine a mile out of the city where the men left the railroad, held in an automobile and robbed the occupants of $70. Motor cycle officers gave chase and they abandoned the machine and crossed the field to another road, where shot a farmer and escaped in his carriage.

MAY PAY TAX BY INSTALLMENT

Washington, June 11.—The payment of the war profit taxes on the installment plan is being considered by the Finance committee and it is understood that they favor the plan. This has come in response to the demands, on the part of the business interests that they have time in which to pay their tax.

Portsmouth, N. H., Wednesday, June 12, 1918.

After the first flush of excitement in connection with any war development passes the first question is, "What will be the effect on business?" Even this great war with all its horrors cannot take the minds of Americans from business, and this is well. More business than ever must be done to furnish the sinews of war, and it is therefore proper that if the country cannot for the time being have "business as usual" it can have business, and plenty of it. And much of it in spite of the exigencies of the war will be "as usual."

There is no reason to doubt that the summer resort business will be very much as usual this year. While the burdens of the war are weighing on the financial resources of the people there is still a vast amount of money in circulation and the probability is that the summer resorts will be well patronized.

And without doubt this will be as true of the coast resorts as of others.

Boston and Maine passenger train crews will greatly appreciate the order of General Superintendent J. D. Tyler, which enables them to "strip down to it" during the heated season. The order is based on common sense and will add materially to the comfort of the men at a time of year when there is none too much comfort for hard workers.

Mrs. Ballington Booth thinks that certain men in American prisons should be placed in the army and navy and has suggested the plan to President Wilson, who has taken it under advisement. Other countries have done something along this line, but whether the United States is ready for such a step remains to be determined.

An American who has recently returned from Russia predicts that that country will yet be fighting on the side of Germany. It hardly seems so now, but in view of the history Russia has made in the last four years almost anything is to be expected from the mighty conglomeration of varying ideas and lack of ideas.

A headline says that "Americans will restore the equilibrium" on the western front. And the chances are that after they get it restored the scale of calamity will begin to tip in the direction of Germany. This thing is not going to hang at a dead balance forever.

Stock your lawns with sheep forthwith. The clip of the little flock on the White House lawn has been sold for $325. But in was understood that the proceeds were to go to the Red Cross, and the wool brought somewhat more than the "goat" price.

The Fish Trust doesn't get all of the money. A Gloucester schooner recently returned from an eight-days' trip with a catch that netted the crew $215 each. While consumers have to pay that rate of wages they can hardly expect fish to be cheap.

Practically everybody here knew all the time that the U-boats were liable to bob up off the Atlantic coast at any time, yet the development was a great surprise to London. But then, the British are proverbially slow, you know.

It is said the new submarine menace is stimulating enlistments in the merchant marine, and this is easy to believe. Young America is usually ready when there is real work to be done.

The June cold wave was fairly sharp while it lasted, but it was not so severe as one recently experienced in Central Europe which did far more damage than was done here.

Did the Massachusetts authorities decide on gray as the "war-scare" color of the State House dome under the delusion that the Germans would refuse to assail that color?

A dispatch from London says Great Britain is well supplied with ham, bacon and potatoes. Which is more than can be said of some of the people of this country.

Protect the birds. They eat bugs, which some statistician has figured out destroy $800,000,000 worth of crops every year. Save the birds.

One million names have been added to the registration lists and 200,000 more men are to be called at once. The country is at war.

More coal and less talk about it would be mighty acceptable to New England.

"TO HELL WITH THE HAPSBURG AND THE HOHENZOLLERN"

(By Col. Henry Watterson)

The following editorial by Marse Henry in the Louisville Courier-Journal of April 7, 1917, was awarded a prize of $500 by the Pulitzer School of Journalism as the best editorial article written during the year, the test of excellence being clearness of style, moral purpose, sound reasoning and power to influence public opinion in the right direction.

Rally 'Round the Flag, Boys!—Uncle Sam's battle song.

Sound the bold anthem! War dogs are howling; Proud bird of Liberty screams through the air.

The hunters of Kentucky. It is with solemnity and a touch of sadness that we write the familiar words of the old refrain beneath the invocation to the Starry Banner, the breezy call of hero-breeding bombast quite gone out of them; the glad shout of battle; the clarion note of defiance; because to us, not as to Nick-of-the-Woods and his homely companions, the forest, the rather as to the men of old comes this present call to arms.

We only reply with the woman's heart of Bunick, of Montana, yet repudiate with manly disdain the sentimental scruples of Kitchin, of North Carolina.

There are times when feeling must be sent to the rear; when duty must lead the line; when the aversion brave men have for fighting must yield the adoration Givie me liberty or give me death. That time is now upon us.

Unless Patrick Henry was wrong—unless Washington and the men of the Revolution were wrong, that time is upon us. It is a lie to pretend that the world is better than it was; that men are truer, wiser; that war is escapable; that peace may be had for the planning and the asking. The situation which, without any act of ours, rises before us is as exigent as that which rose before the Colonists in America when a mad English King, claiming to rule without accountability, asserted the right divine of kings and sent an army to enforce it. A mad German Emperor, claiming partnership with God, again elevates the standard of right divine and bids the world to worship or die.

From the beginning the issue was not less ours than of the countries first engaged. Each may have had ends of its own to serve. Nor were these ends precisely alike. At least France, to whom we owe all that we have of sovereignty and freedom, and Belgium, the little David of nations, fought to resist invasion; to avert slavery—savagery, pitiless slavery. Yet, whatever the animating purpose—whatever the selfish interests of England and Russia and Italy—the Kaiser's scheme of world conquest justified it.

In us it sanctifies it. Why should any American split hairs over the European rights and wrongs involved when he sees before him grim and gnarled the mailed figure of absolutism with hand uplifted to strike Columbia where those three years she has stood pleading for justice, peace and mercy? God of the free, hear! hope and home forbid!

Each of these three years the German Kaiser was making war upon us. He was making war secretly, through his emissaries in destruction of our industries, secretly through his diplomats plotting not merely foreign but civil war against us, and, as we now know, seeking to foment servile and racial insurrection; then openly upon the high seas levying murder upon our people and violating all our rights and claims with scorn and insult—with scorn and insult unparelleled at this moment—pretending to flout us with ignorance and contempt. Where would the honest passivist draw the line?

Surely the time has arrived—many of us think it was long since overdue—for calling the braves to the colors. Nations must take stock on occasion; and if the time has come to show down, it is but a trifle to say so.

Fifty years the country has enjoyed surpassing prosperity. This has overcommercialized the character and habits of the people. Twenty-five years the gospel of passivism, with business as business, for its text, has not only been preached—indiscriminately—occasionally—without let or hindrance, but has been richly financed and potentially organized. It has established a party. It has made a cult, justifying itself in a find it has called humanity—in many ways a most specious humanity—and has set this above and against patriotic inclination and duty.

Like a bolt out of the blue flashed the war signal from the very heart of Europe. Across the Atlantic its reverberations rolled to find us divided neutral and unprepared. For fifteen years a body of German reservists disguised as citizens have been marching and counter-marching. They grow in length bold enough to rally to the support of a pan-German scheme of conquest and a pro-German propaganda of Kultur-leading its effrontery in the German-American vote, which began its agitation by threatening us with civil war if we dared to go to war with Germany. There followed the assassin sea monsters and the airship campaign of murder.

All the while we looked on with either simpering idleness or dazed apathy. Serbia? It was no affair of ours. Belgium? Why should we worry? Foodstuffs soaring—warstuffs soaring—everybody making money—the mercenary, the poor of heart, the mean of spirit, the bleak and barren of soul, could still plead the hypocrisy of Unfit and chorale: I did not raise my boy to be a soldier. Even the Lusitania did not awaken us to a sense of danger and arouse us from the stupefaction of ignorance and ignoble self-complacency.

First of all, on bended knee, we should pray God to forgive us. Then erect, as men, Christian men, soldierly men, to the flag and the fray—wherever they lead us—over the ocean, through France to Flanders, across the low countries to Köln, Bonn and Koblenz—tumbling the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein into the Rhine as we pass, dashing the debris of the ruin, we make, then on, on to Herlin, the Black Horse Cavalry, sweeping the Wilhelmstrasse like lava down the mountain side. Before us, the times being Dixie and Yankee Doodle, the cry being "Hail the French republic—Hail the republic of Russia—We come the Commonwealth of the Valley—No place with the Kaiser—No parley with autonomy, absolutism and the divine right of kings—TO HELL WITH THE HAPSBURG AND THE HOHENZOLLERN!"

EDITORIAL COMMENT

KEPT UP BY WIND
(From the Brooklyn Eagle)

A Socialist is defined as a non-distributable hot-airplane. If Law hits one wing, he comes down to earth.

OSCAR S. STRAUS'S NEW JOB
(From the New York World)

On quitting the chairmanship of the Public Service Commission, Oscar S. Straus shoulders new public duties, as it is his nature to do. The sugar investigation that he is about to undertake at the instance of Food Administrator Hoover is not the sort of vacation that most men would seek after an arduous period of official labors. But Mr. Straus has never evaded a public duty.

HIS TIME IS SHORT
(From the Chicago Evening Post)

Like most men of culture, Sir R. B. Finlay, British lord chancellor, knows his Bible, and can quote it aptly.

Referring to the recent extraordinary manifestations of German rage in the bombing of hospitals, he said they reminded him of a certain person concerning whom it was written that his "wrath is great because his time is short." The cable dispatch does not do the fitness of the quotation justice, however. We looked it up and found it so admirably suited to recent happenings that we give it in full, as you may read it Revelation xii, 12:

"Woe for the earth and for the sea, because the devil has gone down unto you, having great wrath, knowing that he hath but a short time."

That explains more than the hospital bombings—it explains the frenzied drives on the west front and the "U" on our Atlantic coast.

PROTECTING NEW YORK AND BOSTON

(From the New York Commercial)

What would we not give for a system of protected waterways along the Atlantic coast from Boston to the Gulf of Mexico? The money we are spending on war in one month would have constructed them on the most elaborate scale. It is useless to carp over split milk and there is much that we can do to improve speedily what we have at comparatively slight expense.

First in importance, waterway between New York and Boston. The most vulnerable point on the Atlantic coast is Cape Cod. The remedy is, deepen and widen the Cape Cod Canal so that the largest naval and coastwise vessels can pass through it. That done, water traffic between New York and Boston will be practically safe from submarine attack. This canal is now twenty-five feet deep and a hundred feet wide. It can be dredged quickly to a depth of forty-five feet and a width of two hundred feet or more. Then deepen Hell Gate channel to forty or forty-five feet and all the summer's afloat cannot close the gate of New York, Boston and Narragansett Bay.

The Kaiser has carried the war to our shores. The collapse of Russia has freed his hands for the struggle in the west and if he also gets the food he needs from Russia, this war may last several years. These and other improvements to our system of coastal waterways can be completed long before their military importance in this war is an "A" and. Such work does not get for many men because power dredgers will do most of it. Now the German submarines have barred our coastwise shipping and temporarily closed our ports, nothing is more important than the work of defending New York and Boston and keeping open the water communications between them.

NAVY YARD NOTES

Enlists After Many Attempts
Jeremiah Burke, assistant pressman on the Newburyport News, has succeeded in getting into war service, as he was accepted yesterday for the United States Coast Guard at the local navy yard.

He was sent to Camp Devens as a draftee several months ago and was there rejected because he had lost the tip of the forefinger of his right hand. He made several attempts to enlist in Boston, and failed because of the injured finger. Finally he was given a further examination by the draft board in Division 20 and placed in the United service class.

Last week he came to Portsmouth to try for the Coast Guard. The examining surgeon said he could overlook the maimed finger, but that some bridge work would have to be done on his teeth. Burke returned home and visited a dentist. He went back to Portsmouth yesterday gratified that his persistency had been rewarded.

Defers Navy Day
Navy day, which was to have been observed in Boston June 22, has been postponed until June 29 in order to allow more time to complete the arrangements and assure a large field of entries in the various contests to be held on the Charles river.

Navy Nine Must Disband
Boston Navy Yard's baseball team, with a galaxy of star players, has been ordered to disband Sunday. Most of the men have fulfilled six months' shore work, and now are ready for home duty, which it is said will begin some time next week.

The action of the naval authorities in disbanding the nine is not considered a movement to do away with baseball among the sailors. It indicates that men, no matter what their profession may have been before enlisting the service, must meet all requirements.

It is not known what disposition will be made of the players, who figure in the breaking up of the Boston Navy team, other than that they must be ready to go to sea at once. Only one player, Marty Killeen, the third baseman, who has not had six months' shore service, survives the disbanding procedure.

Whether another baseball team will be selected from those men left at the Navy Yard in Charlestown is not known, but it is said that other teams will be organized and be permitted to play games whenever they do not interfere with the routine work of the service.

WE HAD "THE GENERAL COURT"
(From the Hartford Courant)

The Massachusetts Constitutional Convention has been called to recess until next Wednesday. Business has progressed about as usual even while this body was not in session.

The greatest natural wonder in Java, if not in the entire world, is the justly celebrated Geko Kanda Gun, mko, or flame of the Hot Devils, known as The Island of Fire. This geological singularity is really a lake of boiling mud, situated at about the center of the plains of Irobokana, and is called an island because the great elemental sea of vegetation which surrounds it gives it that appearance.

Dr. Ben Teltman of Chicago, serving a sentence in the Warrensville Workhouse, will become city serologist, a position similar to the one he held with the Chicago Board of Health prior to his going to Cleveland. ## STAMPANO IS FOUND GUILTY

Jury Brings In Verdict Against Local Italian, After Half an Hour's Deliberation.

The case of the state vs. Vincenzo Stampano, the Portsmouth Italian who was on trial for assault with intent to kill, by shooting John Fennell, which went on trial Monday morning in superior court at Exeter, was continued Tuesday. It was put on the stand by County Solicitor William H. Sleeper and was given a long grilling examination, through an interpreter. He stated that he had worked in New York, Philadelphia and Syracuse, N. Y., and that he owned a .35-caliber revolver.

The trouble which led up to the shooting affair is alleged by the state to have been caused by a Polish woman by the name of Julia. The defendant showed a scar on his scalp which he claimed was caused by being bitten by Fennell when engaged in a quarrel previous to the shooting.

The evidence was completed at 3 o'clock and immediately William C. Piered of Dover, made the argument for the defendant, in which he claimed that Fennell was of a bad character and was intent on shooting Stampano as the result of trouble with the woman. County Solicitor William H. Sleeper argued for the state claiming it was a clear case of assault with intent to kill.

Judge Allen made the charge into the afternoon, and court took a recess following the charge. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty after about half an hour's deliberation. Judge Allen will pronounce sentence in this city next week.

FRENCH PRAISE U. S. MARINES

Paris, Monday, June 10.—Praise is given the marines and other American troops who took part in the fighting last week, northwest of Chateau Thierry. In an official statement issued tonight giving a summary of the operations there, it is declared that with "strong will and irresistible activity" the American troops continue absolutely to dominate the adversary they oppose.

"The operations on the 6th of June in advancing our line," the statement adds, "gave us a view of the enemy which permitted us to exploit the situation. Also in the evening the American troops, pushing forward toward Ruessars and Drey and continuing to clean up Belleau Wood from local opposition, advanced their line more than a mile.

Yankee Takes Gun
"Finally, toward 6 o'clock in the evening, some of our troops penetrated into Ruessars."

"The American infantry showed itself very active in maneuvering. The courage of the officers and men bordered on temerity. One lieutenant, hindered in his advance by a machine gun, threw himself almost alone into the woods where it was established and, having killed its crew, returned with the gun over his shoulder.

"The courage of the combatant troops was equalled only by the magnificent coolness of certain of their ambulance men, who amidst a hail of bullets gave first aid to the wounded before carrying them to field dressing stations.

New England Fuel Administrator URGES COAL FIRE BE ABANDONED

He says that a ton of coal turned into gas by the gas company has greater fuel value than a ton and a half burned in the kitchen range. We have always told you this. Now why do you keep on using coal when it is so scarce and you can get a better fuel by using gas?

PORTSMOUTH GAS CO., ALWAYS AT YOUR SERVICE

Americans, our troops the next day widened considerably the width of the day before, while the division on the right progressed northward. Both thus effected a very skillful maneuver. During the morning our troops captured Veully-la-Poterie cemetery and, finally, by a single dash they carried the heights southwest of Ruessars. Our troops met with stubborn resistance, which they broke down completely.

"The Germans suffered irreparable losses. One of the companies opposed to us which counted 100 bayonets at the beginning, yesterday only mustered 37, five of whom belonged to another company and five to the regimental reserves."

GERMAN TRANSLATION

Amsterdam, June 11.—The German semi-official press bureau made an amusing blunder in an account of Baron von Richtofen's death which was published in all the German news papers. In translating an account of his end from the English newspaper accounts, it stated that the German airman was brought down by "Gunner Lewis" this being a careless translator's rendering of "Lewis gun."

It was not until two days later that the German newspaper discovered the mistake. The Cologne Gazette editorializes: "The news report attributed the shooting down of Von Richtofen to Gunner Lewis, and a number of German newspapers have helped the gallant gunner to widespread fame. To whoever the honor of Richtofen's defeat belongs, it certainly is not Gunner Lewis, for he owed the existence only to a mistake in the translation, and the bullet was fired by a Lewis gun."

"Gunner Lewis, however, will adorn a modest place in the history of the war, where he will be able to converse about the dangers of too rapid translation with General Staff who was one of the famous German news paper blunders of the war of 1870."

London, June 11.—The official Australian correspondent at the front in France gives the following account of Australian machine-gunner's claim to have participated in the shooting down of Baron von Richtofen:

"About 11 o'clock on the morning of April 21 the troops along the Somme and Ancre had heard distant popping from two fleets of British and German airplanes which had been fighting high over the German lines, when a German plane was seen diving after a British plane.

"These two, detached from the fight came so low that they were temporarily hidden by hills from the sight of the Australian gunners, and troops around them. Presently the sound of approaching engines was heard, and low over the crest of the hills by the river came the British plane, making directly towards a position where there were two Lewis guns.

"Behind his plane could be seen the wings of the German plane pursuing. The German was pressing the English plane desperately close and firing short bursts from a machine gun.

"When about a hundred yards away from the nearest Lewis gun the German plane which at first had been obscured by the British plane, was now sufficiently clear to enable the guns to fire on it without risk of hitting the British machine. Both guns fired a burst.

"The German plane the next instant wavered unsteadily to one side, banked up, and veered in a sharp circle to the left, then shot in a line sheer down a steep long angle to the ground about 400 yards from the Lewis gunners.

"When the burst was fired, an officer told me he clearly saw fragments of wood or metal flicked from the machine.

NO BREAK IN MARCH ABROAD

(From the New York World)
Secretary Danile's view of the immediate and remote effects of the U-boat raid on these shores is quickly expressed in the statement that the duty that the American Navy is to keep the way open to France for our troops and supplies and that this "great task will be successfully accomplished at all hazards."

Under the protection of the United States Navy a mighty machine has been built up and extended across the Atlantic for the movement of the nation's powers of war to France. What it has already done to this end, Germany is finally beginning to understand. Of what it may yet do, the German fear is reflected in this wild submarine stroke at the point of departure.

"But the machine will move on as before and as certainly as the fate which is settling down upon the bridge and power of Central Europe. What the machine of its submarine effort could not do in its own chosen zone of action to prevent the construction and operation of the machine which has already broken hundreds of thousands of American soldiers into France on a spectacular U-boat gesture like this will be able to do anywhere else.

THE HUNS LESSON OF THE MARNE

(From the New York Telegraph)
The German military machine may raise its armies, equip them, provide them with all the hideous instruments of warfare, and make them capable of devising. It can take these great masses of men and within certain lines and along certain grooves effective, but it cannot handle them of military strategy it can make them after they are outside those lines or off those grooves. A machine cannot act or think on original lines, did the German soldier is essentially a war machine. He can go forward when and how he has been taught to go; fight when and how he has been taught to fight, and shout "Kamerad!" when confronted with something not in the books and not imparted by his instructors. He confronted some new things when he met those American boys the other day, and they found him out of the trenches, away from his officers, with no time to read the books or attend a lecture. Therefore, when these husky boys in olive drab came at him with their machine guns, their trench knives, their bombs and above all their cold sharp bayonets, the Huns had nothing to do but to drag, run or surrender.

They hadn't primed him up on how to meet men who advance when the books say they should be stopped, who use their bayonets like knives and shout as if they were trying for the grand prize at a schuetzenfest.

"That is the thing which should worry the German Supreme Command. Some day they should know this war is going out in the open to stop there, and millions of men, just like those along the Marne, are going to act just as the huns did the other day, and there isn't a method on earth by which science can fashion men to meet them; that must be bred in the bone.
